Live twitter site

Archived mobile twitter

This screenshot shows the live Twitter profile page for Adam Bandt (@AdamBandt). The header includes navigation links for Home, Notifications, Discover, and Me, along with a search bar and utility icons. The main profile image is a large black and white photograph of people at a beach. Below it is a smaller profile picture of Adam Bandt. The profile information includes his name, handle, location (Melbourne), website (adambandt.com), and join date (March 2009). A statistics bar shows 6,035 tweets, 247 photos/videos, 20.7K following, 56.2K followers, and 124 favorites. The 'Tweets' section displays several tweets, including one about supporting women in research and another about smart scientists in Parliament. A 'Who to follow' section lists accounts like ACTION Buses, Monica Attard, and Anthony Albanese. A 'Trends' section shows 'Happy Labor Day' as a trending topic.

This screenshot shows the archived mobile Twitter app interface for Adam Bandt's profile. The header features a search bar, 'Sign in', and 'sign up' options. The profile information is consistent with the live site, showing Adam Bandt as the MP for Melbourne and Deputy Leader of the Australian Greens. The statistics bar indicates 4,110 tweets, 16,687 following, and 36,610 followers. Below the profile is a 'Follow' button and a list of tweets. The tweets are dated from 3 days ago to 9 days ago, covering topics such as going offline, a science minister's beliefs, and political support.

Presenting the TOMmies: the best (and worst) of the 2013 election campaign

They say if you change the government you change the country, and by the end of tomorrow we'll know whether that's your choice.

And as the curtains close on this campaign, we've got some awards to dish out. We asked for your nominations for the TOMmies, the Truth-O-Meter gongs for biggest falsehood, most persistent falsehood, most powerful truth and cleverest half-truth.

From your list of finalists, our panel made its selection. No matter who wins and who loses tomorrow, nobody goes home empty-handed from the TOMmies
